THE RECALL

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1995. The public sector has also become an important employer of women, with 5.5 million women employed in the public sector in 1995, compared with 4.5 million in 1980.

There are a number of reasons why the public sector has become an important employer of women. One reason is that the public sector has a high proportion of women in its workforce. In 1995, 88% of the public sector workforce were women, compared with 78% in 1980.

Another reason is that the public sector has a high proportion of women in its senior management. In 1995, 33% of the public sector senior management were women, compared with 23% in 1980. This is a significant increase, and it suggests that the public sector is becoming more gender-equal in its senior management.

A third reason is that the public sector has a high proportion of women in its part-time workforce. In 1995, 45% of the public sector part-time workforce were women, compared with 35% in 1980. This is a significant increase, and it suggests that the public sector is becoming more gender-equal in its part-time workforce.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased by 1.2 million (Office of National Statistics 1999).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people in the community. The Department of Health (1999) has published a strategy for older people, which sets out the government's commitment to older people and the actions that will be taken to improve their lives. The strategy is based on the following principles: older people should be able to live independently and actively; older people should be able to participate in the community; older people should be able to live in their own homes; older people should be able to access the services they need; and older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment. The strategy is being implemented through a number of initiatives, including the Older People's Survey, the Older People's Survey of England, and the Older People's Survey of Wales.

The Older People's Survey of England is a national survey of older people in England. It is the first national survey of older people in England since 1991. The survey is being conducted by the Office of National Statistics, in partnership with the Department of Health. The survey is being conducted in two waves, in 1999 and 2000. The survey is being conducted in a number of ways, including face-to-face interviews, telephone interviews, and postal questionnaires.

DEDICATED TO THE MEMORY

AUGUST 13, 1888

AUGUST 14, 1952

For the greater part of our cadet days, the members of this Senior Class were under the wise guidance of Colonel Ralph L. Jackson, superintendent since 1925.

His untimely death last August ended a career of over fifty years at Western -- first, as a cadet and graduate of the Academy, and then as an instructor, coach, and finally as superintendent. Colonel Jackson returned to W. M. A. after receiving his degree from Princeton University in 1911. From that time on, the school was his very life.

No one has known so much or has been so proud of Western's traditions as Colonel R. L. Jackson. Succeeding his father, Col. A. M. Jackson, as the head of the institution, he maintained the high standards of W.M.A. and increased its prestige as one of the foremost boys' preparatory schools in the United States.

Colonel Jackson always stressed academic training and character development above all other objectives. He insisted upon the best possible service for his cadets in every department of the school.

Seniors this year missed the Colonel's warm interest, wise counsel, and firm guidance. It is with respect and affection that they dedicate this 1953 "Recall" to the memory of a great school man, administrator, and friend -- Colonel Ralph L. Jackson. Our class and the many classes to come will benefit from the heritage which his useful life has bequeathed to Western Military Academy.

YES, THE STAFF HAD PROBLEMS

The book is finished now. We can laugh at the problems that we met. For example, do you remember that blizzard on March 1st? We do. That was the day set for our outdoor "Recall" pictures. Boonshaft, Allen, and Costello saw the humor of white ducks in a snow storm and engaged in a little sword play. But the pictures were taken just the same.

THE MEMBERS OF THE SENIOR CLASS PRESENT

AS A RECORD OF THEIR FINAL EVENTFUL
YEAR AT WESTERN MILITARY ACADEMY

When we Seniors entered Western, we were very much like the big, raw, undeveloped athlete. Our potentialities were small and great, our efforts weak and strong - but one thing was sure. We did not know how to produce in the various phases of school life, but we hoped that we might learn.

For us Western has been coach, dietitian, teacher, advisor, friend. It has been the guiding force that has built us into well-proportioned individuals.

In academics, we have learned to think in terms of facts instead of unstable opinions and conclusions.

In military training, we have acquired discipline and leadership, without which we cannot control ourselves, much less others.

Athletics have brought us the thrill of competition, team-work, and physical coordination.

Social life and activities have given fun and relaxation, sharper wits, and a means of self-expression.

Just as a coach trains his athletes, Western has developed us. For the athlete, the challenge is a sports contest, to win or to lose. For us, as we prepare to leave this familiar campus, the challenge is LIFE.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

W. M. A. CHAPTER

Seated:	Holloway, Baker, Boe.
Standing:	Boonschaft, Allen, R., Saul, Walker.

Of all distinctive honors in the Senior Class, membership in the National Honor Society is considered one of the greatest. The requirements are perhaps the most difficult of all, for they are not based on any one attribute, and membership can be merited only by effort over a long period of time.

The selection of members for the Society are made on four cardinal points - - Scholarship, Service, Leadership, and Character. Cadets chosen must be in the upper quarter of the class in scholarship.

The chapter at Western was established eleven years ago and is sponsored by Col. Persing. It is a positive and stimulating force. It tries to help in shaping proper attitudes and opinions in the cadet corps. It seeks to influence others by upholding the highest standards in student life. It aspires to further those actions which are conducive to loftier ideals and greater achievement.

The "Candle Ceremony" of initiation, again conducted by graduate, Bill Foster, was one of the most impressive of the year. The new members, lighting candles from a central taper on a table, repeated this pledge in unison: "As one flame lighteth another, nor grows less, so may we by our honorable purpose kindle in the hearts of our fellow cadets enthusiasm for high scholastic achievement, unselfish service, sound leadership, and clean character."

ACADEMIC YEAR

Though military work was stepped up in importance this year, The Academic Department was, as always, the very foundation of school life. Of course there were sports, trips, and activities, which were fun and hard work too, but no cadet was allowed to forget that the idea of getting a sound education stood foremost. Col. Persing, Headmaster, had around him the finest faculty Western has known in recent years.

In addition, the student body was of a very high order. Over thirty cadets came from without the borders of the United States. The intelligence of cadets and interest in classes were very noticeable, especially among lower-classmen. Many a brilliant mind was discovered among younger cadets which gave bright promise of achievements in the future.

For the eleventh year the Western Chapter of the National Honor Society functioned actively. The members held many lively discussions and made great plans for the future. The candle-light initiation ceremony was held in mid-March. Ten members were inducted, three junior members from last year and seven new ones. Western's own academic honor society, the Club 400, was greatly enlarged, as more students qualified by superior scholastic work.

Col. Persing and Capt. Howell carried on the Junior-Senior speech program with marked success. Each member of the two upper classes had to prepare and deliver a speech in assembly. The idea gave some stage fright, but each speaker admitted when he had faced the public that it was a helpful, and even an enjoyable experience.

Something behind the scenes which had a great deal to do with maintaining high academic standards was the faculty meetings with Col. Persing presiding. These meetings shaped the policy of each class and instructor. The discussions of vital topics proved helpful to the entire department.

What about our classes and our teachers? Yes, they caused us plenty of hard work and sweat, but we can never forget our instructors. We'll just skip at random around the campus and drop in on some of the classes.

THE THREE "R's" -- AND THEN SOME

Maj. Gould talks solid geometry to 'solid' students; Col. Persing congratulates spelling champ, Harders; Capt. Naxera labors with Blankenship and Redman.

Bottom row:

Capt. Lange warns Saul and Costello not to blow up lab; Off to another class: Capt. Lamp- ing makes it clear to Gintz.

Costello gives senior speech;
Baker, Hosto wait nervously.

Even before we invisibly enter his classroom, we hear Maj. Buck clearly enunciating the "dictat" for the day and stopping to impress forcefully the idea of system and order. The oldest instructor on the faculty in length of service, he declares in that same vigorous tone: We are here to learn German, German, and more German. Yes, we find ourselves admitting that Maj. Buck is a legend at Western and that there will always be a place for him in the hearts of his students.

We find that Col. Persing's College Board English Class is one that taxes a cadet to the best of his ability. One learns much from his lectures while considering such intangibles as happiness, fear, and the like.

Next we hop to the chemistry and physics classrooms, where kindly and efficient Capt. Lange presides. The lab is now in session, and from the thundering shouts we know that Bill Burns is present. We see in the corner Gerry Saul and Keith Burgard laughing slyly, as they think that they have discovered a new element, or at least a new pungent odor. These young chemists hold a record for invigorating the class with a new smell each day. In the physics room, we are just in time to see Capt. Lange give John Ratliff a soft pat on the back and tell him that he will find out the sure answer to his problem in the next chapter.

We proceed on our way to hear Capt. Howell and Maj. Hinton, that Southern-accented English instructor, working with those frolicsome Lower School boys. They get amazing results, too, in teaching manners, poetry, grammar, and literature. Maj. Hinton holds forth in Freshman classes and creates a new interest in writing. His clear expression of ideas, plus a truly likable character, makes his subjects popular.

Time is growing short. We float down the hall to Capt. Brown's Junior English classes. His amazing fund of knowledge and his laconic, yet friendly manner, rate him as tops with the cadets.

Next to the rooms of Capt. Spiva, Capt. Naxera, Capt. Robertson, and Capt. Jauron, all new instructors who quickly got into the swing of things, we find the usual workmanlike and absorbing classes in progress. In Maj. C. B. Jackson's U.S. History Class, we note that the party system has taken over. The cadets are learning the procedures of democratic government. The Major's face, wreathed in a perpetual smile, is a true symbol of good will. Now we hear the mumbo-jumbo of foreign languages. We know that we are in Capt. McKinney's Spanish classes, and we feel the graceful atmosphere of Latin-America, which he knows and loves from actual experience.

Athletic and friendly Maj. Gould sees that things run like clock-work in his advanced algebra and solid geometry classes. We see Capt. Green making geometry seem as easy as arithmetic. Across the hall, we observe apparently inert forms draped limply over drawing boards, but they are merely absorbed in mechanical drawing under Capt. Lamping, who also shows remarkable patience with the younger students in his algebra classes.

As our tour ends, we dash across the campus to Capt. Bresson's general science and biology labs. What an interesting place his room is, full of fascinating specimens and exhibits, and full, too, of some of the best instruction on the campus. We feel that he is a builder of character.

And so we close our farewell tour of the classrooms. We know that these instructors whom we have met are friends as well as teachers and that they deserve the greatest credit for making the academic year a success.

MILITARY LIFE

Every year military training at Western is in charge of U.S. Army personnel. The military staff this year was unusually capable and helpful. When the new cadets took the R.O.T.C. pledge at the first formation on September 7, the military outlook did not appear too good. However, under the excellent guidance of Lieut. Col. Baudouine, PMST, and with the help of Sgt. Aaron, Sgt. Hughes, Sgt. Churchill, and Sgt. Peachner, the corps soon took on a snappy military appearance. From the first, the leaders and acting officers worked hard, and their reward came when Col. Jackson announced the first commissions on October 26.

Military life at Western is not just fancy parades and marches. In fact, the most valuable knowledge was learned in theory classes and in tactical problems. This practical training can be most useful in the future.

AT WESTERN

The military year was highlighted by four main events. First, Maj. Gen. J. G. Christiansen, Commanding General of Fort Leonard Wood, visited Western on November 14 to inspect and review the corps as a sample of an R.O.T.C. unit. He was received with due honors, and he was pleased with what he saw. Second, the entire corps took part in the St. Louis Armistice Day Parade and stood out as one of the best units present. Third, as winter merged into spring, came the brilliant military ball on February 22 and the awarding of the Chicago Tribune Medals. The biggest event of all was the annual Government Inspection of the corps on April 23-24 by officers sent out by the Fifth Army Headquarters. Upon the showing made by the cadets depended Western's "Honor Rating", the highest awarded.

The year ended with military exhibitions at commencement. Everyone felt that military work during 1952-53 reached a degree of perfection not often attained.

Military

There were several military highlights during the year. One was the visit of Maj. General James G. Christiansen, Commanding General of Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo. He came to Western to observe a typical R.O.T.C. unit in action. He was welcomed with all due honors, and he had words of commendation for the W.M.A. corps of cadets.

Highlights

Among other highlights, including Government Inspection, was the appearance of the entire corps in the Armistice Day Parade in St. Louis, where the W.M.A. battalion was judged one of the snappiest units in the line of march. Another major event was the Military Ball, at which Chicago Tribune Medals were awarded to two outstanding cadets.

THE 1952 TEAM BECAME A RUGGED OUTFIT

The 1952 version of Western's Red Raiders was one of the biggest and toughest in the history of the school. By the end of the year, after mastering Coach Jauron's "T" and "split-T" formations, they had won the respect of all opponents and coaches for their clean, rugged play on both defense and offense.

Under a new coach, Capt. Robert V. Jauron, ably assisted by Maj. C. B. Jackson, the Raiders developed a spirit and hustle that had been lacking in recent years. They made a respectable showing in each game of a very hard schedule.

Six letter men were on hand at the start of the season - Jay Gintz, George Holloway, and Pierre Schrichte in the line, and Don Lerner, Doug Baker, and Gary Boe in the backfield. Up from the "J.V." and "B" elevens came many fine players, such as Ray Cinnater, Bill Harris, Dave Grinnell, Ron Reynolds, Bill Burns, Dick Walker, Benje Boonshaft, Keith Burgard, Kent Kaiser, Bob Miller, and many others.

The opening kickoff of the season was against a strong Normandy team. After the dust had cleared away, Western had dropped a close 14-12 decision after conversions following touchdowns failed. Cinnater's two touchdown passes to Baker highlighted the play of the cadets.

The next weekend the Red Raiders showed a fine offense but a weak defense against powerful Kirkwood of Missouri, and they were overcome, 25-14, on Eaton Field. Lerner and Baker scored on short plunges for Western.

On October 4, the cadets crashed into the victory column by an impressive win over a good De Andreis eleven, 25-0, on the W.M.A. gridiron. Improved ball-handling and a sturdy defense brought victory to the Jaunomen. Baker scored all four touchdowns, and Gintz kicked his third extra point.

The Raiders then journeyed to St. Louis to lose the A.B.C. League opener to Country Day, 20-6. The cadets were sluggish and lacking in pep, but they held the Codascans to their lowest score of the fall as they rolled on to an undefeated season.

In their only night game of the season, the Red Raiders lost to Collinsville the following week, 25-0. They put up a hard fight in the first half, but wilted in the second half before the pounding of the Kahoks.

The loss of an A.B.C. game to John Burroughs a week later on Eaton Field was a heart-breaker. The cadets fought valiantly only to be edged by the Bombers, 14-13. They outplayed the St. Louisans but the breaks were against them. Doug Baker scored twice and had another touchdown called back.

Next on the schedule were the Central Catholic Pioneers, who outswam the Raiders on Eaton Field, 25-7, but not before the cadets had put up a great battle. Don Lerner played a great game and scored Western's only T. D.

Suddenly the Red Raiders "clicked" and looked unbeatable in the last two games. At Elsah in easily the most exciting game of the season, the cadets won an A.B.C. contest from Principia, 26-20. The lead changed hands five times until Baker hurled a final touchdown pass to Morris for the victory. Lerner, Holloway, and Westlake (on an 80-yard run) all counted for Western in a brilliant display of offensive strength.

The final game on Eaton Field found the Raiders at their best, as they swept over the University City Indians, 19-6, on a clear, sunny day. Baker, Lerner, and Cross, J. scored in this last battle for Western, while Schrichte, Holloway, and Burgard stood out in line play.

Thus ended an exciting season. The Raiders would accept no alibis for the mediocre showing of the record. They had done their best, had improved remarkably, and were proud of their hard clean play.

Tackle Keith Burgard and halfback Doug Baker were named on the first All-A.B.C. team, while tackle Pierre Schrichte and Baker won berths on the Alton All-District team. Don Lerner won special mention on both of these teams.

The 1952 season was a success for the Red Raiders. Our hats are off to all players and their fine coaches. We feel that even more excellent football will be played in 1953.

Capt. Bresson's "B" gridmen had a great season in the A.B.C. League, winning 4, losing one, and tying one. That scoreless tie with Burroughs kept them from sharing the loop title. As it was, they finished in second place.

They were a scrappy outfit, and some players developed into varsity material. Gruwell, Lyngar Westlake, Tolen, Jansky, Cross, J. Ratliff, Hæger, Julian, and Benjamin played great football.

The year 1953 proved to be very good for the Red Raider cagers. Coach Bob Jauron had five returning letter men, and a host of players up from the "J.V." and "B" squads from which to build a team. Even though the record was not over 500 per cent, the W.M.A. basketball players played excellent basketball and met the strongest teams in two states. Some of the defeats were by the margin of a point or two.

Waves of respiratory infections and measles caused some of the top players to miss games, or the record would have been much better. As it was, Bill Burden was one of the leading scorers of the area with 330 points, an average of 16.5 per game. He made the All-A.B.C. team and the All-District team. Kaiser and Wilkinson were on the second All-A.B.C. team, and Parker was named on the All-District.

Seven of the squad are seniors and will graduate. They are Burden, Wilkinson, Baker, Bergstrom, Schaller, Scoville, and Allen. Only Parker and Kaiser will return next year, but with fine players coming up from the championship "B" quintet, the outlook for 1954 will be very promising. Good luck, Raiders.

Kaiser jumps for the tip.

"B" TEAM RECORD

Without doubt, Capt. Lange's "B" cagers were one of the smoothest athletic teams on the campus. In A.B.C. League play, they were unbeaten as they went on to win the title decisively.

These basketballers got the winning habit on the championship "C" team of 1952. No wonder their slogan is "To the State or bust!"

Bob Martinie, team captain, famous for his long shots, Joe Holsen, who reached varsity calibre, and Dick Jansky, sturdy guard, sparked the victorious season. But one could never forget the fine play of Samuels, Haeger, Hoppensteadt, and all of the others. What a team! They had skill, cooperation, courage, and spirit. That's an unbeatable combination!

Sportsmanship, hard play, and the desire to win were the characteristics of this year's varsity soccer team, undisputed champions of the A.B.C. League. Winning or sharing the title for the fourth straight year. Coach Bresson's kickers established themselves as one of the best teams in the St. Louis area.

Although eleven men returned from the 1952 team, the outlook was not too bright at the start of the season. However, hard work and excellent coaching soon produced a smooth-working squad which became famous for teamwork and defensive skill. The team included many Latin-American cadets who added color and fight to every game.

Team captain, Martinez, was backed with fine play by Gintz, Miller, R., Bennett, Butto, Trespalacios, Gonzalez, R., the Torres boys, Dyke, and many others. Good material came up from the 1952 "B" team, which always supports the fine soccer tradition at Western.

Tony Trespalacios was named on one of the All-District teams. Perhaps there were others who could qualify, but the success of the eleven was due to teamwork, and not to individual stars. Congratulations to this fine group, and here's hoping Capt. Bresson's kickers can win their fifth straight title in 1954.

Maj. C. B. Jackson had one of the largest squads of youngsters out for the "B" soccer team. They were mostly green players, and therefore it was all the more notable that they fought through the season to gain a co-championship in the A.B.C. League.

Their league record was full of surprises. There was a great number of tie games, as the "B" kickers were stronger on defense than on offense. However, they lost only one league game, and while they were tying their opponents, these same opponents were cutting each other's throats. So the cadets were able to battle to the top position.

Many good young players were developed who will be on the varsity in future years. The play of Benjamin and Estes, co-captains, stood out, while little

A. Haddad, Silverman, Kiss, Torres, Koch, and many others were contributing factors. Many contests were played in mud and cold weather. But when all was said and done, no group of athletes had more fun or played any harder for Western. Thus, on these two pages, we are proud to present a pair of champions, the "A" and "B" soccer teams, who did their share in bringing honors to the campus in athletics.

The Western splashers had a lot of fun, though they met some championship teams from across the river. Coach D'Aboy developed a relay team (Boe, Walker, Puchta, Petersen, Muther) which won all but one race. The swimmers found St. Louis U. High to be their "friendliest" opponents, for they beat them twice. Normandy and Principia proved to be very tough.

Boe takes a flying leap.

Walker awaits relay take-off.

Lange, and some letter men returned for track coached by Capts. Jauron and Bresson. The schedules are printed below.

The publication of the "Recall" was practically an all-year job. It was and will be one of the biggest projects on the campus. Staff members found that the planning of the book, taking pictures, compiling records, and assembling data and material for a 152-page book meant many hours of concentrated work. Major Hinton, as the experienced sponsor, was the guide and driving force. The actual production of the yearbook finally rested upon the faithful editorial staff, those men who did not fade when the going was tough and the labor great. The satisfying experience of bringing the "Recall" to a successful completion is their reward.

Burden and Parker selected on All-District cage team at Alton Exchange Club banquet. Sir Galahad Memorial Window in chapel dedicated to memory of Col. A. M. Jackson, Capt. Rex. Latham, Lieut. James K. Latham, and Lieut. A. J. Ellison. Senior play to be 'John Loves Mary'. Fourteen cadets enter projects in Science Fair at Washington U. and ten win prizes, including Kawell's 50-dollar cash award. Seniors go on night patrol with Mexican cadets acting as "enemy". Club 400 members eat chicken dinner at Moonlight Inn. Mary Sauer, brilliant young pianist, charms cadets with recital. Snow rain, sleet, and blizzard on April 17. Cold weather hinders spring sports and preparations for G.I. Lt. Col. Byron W. Ladd and Capt. Sydney L. Davis hold annual inspection of cadet corps to determine Western military rating. It is thought that the battalion made an excellent showing.

April 25 to May 31 -- The final weeks of the year can be covered only by imagination, as this yearbook has gone to press. Spring sports are in full blast. Seniors get long-awaited privileges, and Butto practically lives at Senior Circle. Seniors burn midnight oil preparing for exams, the Senior play, and commencement exercises. Cadets go to State Music Contest at Clinton. Parade is held in honor of mothers on Mothers Day. And now comes the last week. Hundreds of visitors. The Senior play is a success. Saturday brings many interesting military events, an alumni gathering, band concert, and dress parade. Then the brilliant Junior Prom in honor of the Seniors -- the grand march beneath the arch of sabres, colorful decorations, couples promenading on campus, dancing till 1:00 a.m. The farewell dress parade. At last the graduating exercises. Seniors march solemnly in Salutatorian and valedictorian give addresses. Honors are announced. Graduates receive diplomas, salute audience, and take alumni pledge. Other classes advance. The year 1952-53 comes to a close as Seniors lower flag for last time and shake hands with comrades at the Memorial Gate. It was a good year. It was a fine class. This Kadet Kalendar sounds 'taps' and wishes Western the best of everything next year, the 75th Anniversary Year. To our classmates -- goodbye, good luck, and God speed you.

Well done!

Our congratulations to the class of '53. There is a great deal of personal satisfaction in a race well run or a job well done.

The demands of industry today for more and more production speed—with absolute precision—can only be filled by men like yourselves whose training bespeaks accuracy and dependability.

Because of these very qualities Beaver Tooling is universally used today wherever there arises the necessity of a job well done.
